

1 Research support staff

Work-life balance support	Nurturing female leaders

Academic & technical staff (male/female)	Academic & technical staff (females only)

(1) Aim

This program subsidizes the hiring of research support staff for two purposes. One is to enable researchers who are expecting a baby, caring for children or providing family care (hereafter collectively referred to as “childcare, etc.”) to balance their research with those family duties so that they do not have to abandon their research. The other is to support female researchers who contribute to society in key positions such as members of national/local government panels and directors of academic societies (hereafter collectively referred to as “social contributions”) so that they can continue to pursue both those activities and their research, advance their careers, and further play active roles as leaders.

(2) Program details

Grant to cover cost of hiring research support staff

- The maximum grant is 2 million yen/year, but this may be reduced depending on the budget and a review of the application.

- Research support staff are to be hourly workers (technical assistants or clerical assistants) or research assistants (RA)/administrative assistants (AA). The grant may be applied to temporary workers if circumstances necessitate the hiring of temporary staff.
- Research support staff will provide technical assistance and/or clerical assistance to enable the researcher to balance research with childcare, etc. and social contributions.
- The working hours of research support staff are to be limited to 30 hours/week. Applicants planning to employ a research support assistant for no more than 12 hours/week are encouraged to fill the position with university personnel (RA/AA, etc.)
